Chapter 1 by Parkour_Ninja

"Ring... Ring" everyone packed up and left the class. One person staying slightly behind because he wanted to finish the last part of the chapter he was reading. He then packed up as the teacher asked what book he was reading, "Me and Her by Johnathon Thatcher" he responded. "Oh, a classic" the teacher said cheerfully as the student left the class. The boy began walking to his 3rd period class. On the way a beautiful girl approached him from the side asking "Do you know where D5 is?"

The boy saying "Of course, I'm headed there now, I can take you if you'd like."

"Yes, that'd be great." She thankfully said. They were just messing around, though, re-enacting how they met because this was their 6 month anniversary. He gently snatched her hand and they made their way to class where they sat right next to each other. He knew she was the one, and would do next to anything for her, apart from making her sad. He looked over and saw her fiddling with the promise ring he gave her. He asked "What's wrong" because she only did this when she was nervous.

"Oh, nothing she responded" as a tear ran slowly down her perfect face.

"Wait, are you crying, did I do something?" He asked because he hated the thought of her ever being melancholy at all.

"No, it's not you, it's my father, he was just promoted and were are moving to New York" This was terrible because they lived in
